Do you have significant emotional pain that is motivating you to seek help? Recognizing you have a problem is often half the battle. You determine when you need counseling, but NRC believes you will benefit from counseling if you have more than a couple of mild concerns. Having a high total doesn't mean your situation is hopeless; it could mean there is room to experience dramatic improvements.

It's okay if you aren't excited about facing your pain, as long as you are determined to feel better and live with hope. If you are ready to start your recovery, contact us to schedule an appointment and bring this evaluation with you to your first appointment.
